

THIS MATTER is before the court on defendant's pro se Motion to "Excuse Randolph M. Lee for Ineffective Counsel." Recently, a hearing was conducted at which defendant was appeared and was represented by Mr. Lee. At the conclusion of the hearing, the court determined that defendant was completely incoherent. While the court is pleased to see that defendant has regained the ability to communicate in writing, he has provided absolutely no reason to excuse Mr. Lee, who this court has personally observed as providing defendant with excellent representation. Defendant is encouraged to continue to work with his mental health providers as it is obvious that such treatment is beneficial. Further, defendant is advised that this court has the utmost confidence in Mr. Lee and that he will alert the court as soon as any legal relief may become available.

ORDER

IT IS, THEREFORE, ORDERED that defendant's pro se Motion to "Excuse Randolph M. Lee for Ineffective Counsel" (#113) is DENIED.

Signed: August 31, 2015

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Max O. Cogburn Jr.", written over a horizontal line. The signature is stylized with large loops and a trailing flourish.

Max O. Cogburn Jr.
United States District Judge

